Kim Campbell (Port Alberni BC 1947-)

"Born Avril Phaedra Douglas, Kim Campbell is a women of firsts, breaking barriers for women along the way. When Avril was twelve her mother left the family leaving her father to raise Avril and her sister Alex. In her pre-teens she was a CBC host and reporter on the children's program Junior Television Club. When Avril was a teenager she gave herself the nickname Kim after actress Kim Novak. The family moved to Vancouver where she was a top student and the first female student president at Prince of Wales Secondary School.

At the University of BC, Kim earned an honours bachelor's degree in political science and served as the school's first female president of the freshman class, then completed a year of graduate study to qualify for doctoral level studies. In 1970 she went to London School of Economics to study towards her doctorate in Soviet Government. She spent three months touring the Soviet Union in 1972 and studied Russian becoming almost fluent. After marrying, they returned to Vancouver and Kim earned an LLB, Bachelor of Laws, lectured part-time in political science and divorced in 1983. In 1984 she was called to the BC Bar and practiced law until 1986. While attending law school Kim entered politics as a trustee on the Vancouver School Board and once claimed to have told the board to 'back off' (some say 'fuck off').

Other firsts are first female Justice Minister and Attorney General in Canada, first female Minister of National Defence of Canada and of any NATO country, first female Minister of Veterans Affairs, first female leader of the PC Party, first female Prime Minister, first PM to have held office in all three levels of government, municipal, provincial and federal, first Prime Minister born and raised in British Columbia and first former Canadian PM to serve Canada as a diplomat after leaving office.

Kim knows what it's like to make it in a man's world, and is widely regarded as one of the foremost thinkers and speakers on gender issues."
